

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus to facilitate separation of a mask and mask platform is described. That method and apparatus comprises a temperature differential device that provides a temperature differential between a mask and a mask platform. The temperature differential facilitates separation of the mask and the mask platform.